MOOSE JAW MUSEUM & ART GALLERY

IN THE GALLERY >

February 1 to April 30, 2022

Susan Shantz: *Confluence

February 5 - May 1, 2021

Susan Shantz, Water Basin I (Saskatchewan River), (installation) 4 tarps, each 365.8 x 487.7 cm, 2018-2019

In its presentation of installation, bookworks, embroidered objects and video, Confluence is the result of Saskatchewan artist, Susan Shantz', artistic and scientific exploration into the water sources that sustain our province: from the glaciers in the Rocky Mountains of Alberta water flows across the prairies in the South and North Saskatchewan Rivers, joining to create an enormous delta near the Manitoba border. Shantz states, "While I experience the river near my home as a natural phenomenon and place of beauty, after learning more about the river from scientific and environmental perspectives, I have come to realize it is a highly-managed water source. It sustains us, but with a cost for those downstream. Drawing on field trips to sites along the river, I use a variety media (from textiles to videography) to consider the currents that connect us in this prairie water basin." Shantz' work encourages viewers to consider the interconnectedness and fragility of our water sources, the environmental impacts of human progress on our water systems and how these impacts will ultimately affect us all.

We Are The Lake – Community Art Project:

MJM&AG is initiating a community art project in response to the exhibition, Susan Shantz: Confluence. Artist Susan Shantz created a project in 2017, We are the River, in Saskatoon to encourage awareness with Saskatoon residents of their water source, the South Saskatchewan River. Here in Moose Jaw, our water source is Buffalo Pound Lake. City water is drawn from Buffalo Pound and treated for use. Most of us turn on a tap and think little of where our water comes from. We Are The Lake proposes to raise public awareness of our physical, embodied connection to the lake which we drink and which becomes 70% of our body. In an era of climate change and ecological challenges, this project will encourage participants to reflect on our essential connection to water.

Participants in the project are encouraged to have a photo portrait taken with a sign acknowledging our water source. These images will be altered in Photoshop to include a background image of Buffalo Pound Lake. Resulting images will be displayed in a virtual exhibition on our website, on Instagram and presented on a digital billboard here in Moose Jaw.

Stop by during our open hours to add your photo!

IN CONVERSATION SERIES

Susan Shantz: Confluence Artist Talk

Join the MJM&AG for our In Conversation Series with artist, Susan Shantz, and water researcher, Dr. Graham Strickert. This conversation will introduce Shantz's work in the exhibition, Confluence, currently on display at MJM&AG, the research on waterways that informs her work, and the importance of considering water sustainability and security.

Thursday, March 3rd, 2022 at 7:00 pm. Check out our website for event registration.

Gabriela García-Luna: New Territories

New Territories (2011) features a series of colour photographs by Gabriela García-Luna in the MJM&AG Permanent Collection. The series presents fragmented layers of patterned and shredded wallpaper in the process of being removed from various wall surfaces of an old home here in Moose Jaw. Through digital manipulation of her photographic images, Garcia-Luna creates layered, digitally-collaged works that become meditations on time. Images of these damaged, decorative surfaces have an uncanny visual quality that transports the observer to a more complicated, visionary topography, suggestive of aerial, topographic views like zoomed out images of Google Earth.

Gabriela García-Luna is a photo-based artist born in Mexico City, living in Canada, and traveling to India since 2000. In 2019, she completed a MFA degree at the University of Saskatchewan. García-Luna's work explores the paradoxical possibilities inherent to photography; showing the seen and revealing the unseen. Her work takes place where the lines between apparent documented reality and imaginary abstractions meet.
